WASHINGTON.

Senate---Democrat Caucus---Doings of the Committees--The House--The Army Bill Passed and Goes to the President--The Paris Exposition Bill.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—SENATE.—During the morning hour a number of bills were introduced and referred to appropriate committees, most of them being of private character. The Senate then returned to the consideration of unfinished business being a resolution of Mr. Davis, of Virginia, providing for the appointment of a committee of five Senators to inquire into alleged discrepancies in the books and accounts of the Treasury Department.

The Democratic caucus met but did nothing beyond instructing Thurman to confer with the Democratic members of the committee of elections and report to an indefinitely adjourned caucus. The feeling seems to be in favor of a motion to discharge the committee from further consideration and bring credentials squarely before the Senate. The committee on privileges and elections had a full meeting and ordered the papers of Spofford and Kellogg printed.

A motion by Salsuburg was taken up. Eustice laid on the table until the subcommittee on the Spofford Kellogg case had reported. Some indications as to the length of time it would require. The policy of delay seems determined upon by Republicans and Democrats are not over anxious to press the issue. The committee meets to-morrow. The committee of elections of the House had an informal test of sentiment in the Colorado case. Three favor Belford three favor Patterson, four favor no election and two are non-committal chances favor reference back to the people.

SENATE.—The judiciary committee considered the nomination of Harlan to the Supreme Bench without reaching conclusion. His prospects are not encouraging.

The House is considering the Paris Exposition.

WASHINGTON, November 19.—The Finance Committee failed to secure a quorum to-day and took no action on the silver bill.

Victor Drummond the new Secretary of the English legation was installed to-day.

The Sub-Committee of Ways and Means are holding daily sessions with a view of presenting a new tariff bill early in the regular session.

Secretary Schurz is represented as enthusiastic for the preservation of American forests. He will institute fresh suits against all who have depredated upon the public lands in getting timber, turpentine or lumber in any shape.

SENATE.—On motion the Senate receded from the amendment to the army bill in which the House non-concurred and the bill goes to the President. The Senate agreed to Senator Davis' resolution for a committee of five to investigate the Treasury system of book keeping with a view of removing alleged discrepancies.

TURCO-RUSSIAN WAR.

Russia Urges Servia to Action--Turks Fortifying Along the Frontier--Kars With a Large Number of Prisoners and Guns Captured by the Russians.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—It is believed that Osman Pasha can hold out until the beginning of December. Russia is urging Servia to action to check the movement of Mehemet Ali for the relief of Plevna. The Times correspondent at Belgrade telegraphs as follows: General Horvatovics has informed the Servian government if it wishes to join in the war it should do so immediately as the Turks are throwing up strong entrenchments, mounted with heavy Krupp guns all along the Eastern frontier and are also concentrating troops near Clessioura and Tirnova and any day may determine an invasion.

A special dispatch to the Daily News, dated Veran-Kaleh, Sunday evening, says: The fortress and city of Kars, with three hundred cannon, stores, ammunition, cash, etc., fell into Russian hands to-day. The Turks lost 5,000 killed and wounded and 10,000 prisoners and many flags Russian loss about 2,700. The Russian soldiers made but trifling booty, and spared peaceful citizens, women and children. General Loris Melikoff directed the battle during the day. Grand Duke Michael was present also. The former entered the city at 11 o'clock Sunday morning.

FOREIGN.

Foreign Mail Arrangement.

LONDON, November 19.—The British Postoffice authorities have concluded a contract whereby the Cunard, Inman and White Star steamship lines will have the sole carriage of mails to the United States from December.

The agreement provides that the owners of the said lines will furnish despatch from Liverpool every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, calling at Queenstown. The Inman and White Star lines undertake between them the Tuesday and Thursday sailings alternately, and the Cunard the Saturday sailings.

By the terms of agreement all mails from Great Britain, and Ireland for the United States are to be forwarded only by the aforesaid lines, and the aggregate money earned is to be divided equally among them.

From New York there will be an Inman and White Star steamer every Thursday alternately.

FRANCE.

VERSAILLES, Nov. 19.—In the Senate this afternoon M. Arago in the name of the left moved the previous question in regard to M. Audrean De Kerdrel's interpellation as to how ministers have instructed officials to act with regard to the electoral inquiry voted by the Chamber of Deputies on the ground that it is unconstitutional and an encroachment upon the rights of the Chamber of Deputies. M. Arago's motion was rejected by a vote of 150 to 130. M. De Kerdrel then began an address on his interpellation.

Yellow Fever Quarantine Raised--The Case of Blount against Windley.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19th.—Quarantine in all the Southern ports has been raised, the yellow fever having disappeared.

The Supreme Court decides that in the case of Blount vs. Windley there is error. Case remanded to the Supreme Court of North Carolina. Under a statute of the State, passed in 1866, to enable their banks to close their business, the plaintiff in error was appointed commissioner of the bank of Washington and recovered a judgment against the defendant in error paid a debt incurred as security under an act two years later, the Legislature provided that any debt of judgment due to any of the State banks might be paid in the bills of such banks. The defendant in error having tendered such bills in this case, objection was taken that the Commissioner was entitled to payment in coin or legal tenders, and that the act authorizing the satisfaction in the bills of the bank was retrospective in its action. Admitting the retrospective character of the legislation, it is sustained here, as there is no constitutional inhibition, and it is said of such legislation that though generally distrusted it is often beneficial and sometimes necessary, unless it violates some provision of the Federal Constitution there is no power in this court to declare it void.

Mr. Justice Miller delivered the opinion.

Railroad Obstructionists Arrested.

HARRISONBURG, VA., Nov. 19.—Two men were arrested for placing obstructions on the track whereby a cattle train from Staunton was wrecked and Thos. Chillow, engineer and John Thompson, fireman were fatally injured.

A Bad Tramp.

CINCINNATI, November 19.—A special states that at an early hour yesterday morning a tramp, while robbing the postoffice at Grafton, Ohio, was fired upon by Charles Allen, who slept in the building. The tramp returned the fire with probably fatal effect, and escaped.

Yellow Jack Gone.

JACKSONVILLE, Nov, 19.—No new cases or deaths since last report. The general health of the city is excellent. Mayor Boyd answers enquiries if it is safe to come here in the affirmative; all alarm is subsided.

Germany Asking a Loan.

LONDON, November 19.—A special dispatch from Berlin to the Times says: It is expected that the German Government will ask Parliament for permission to contract for a loan of one hundred and fifty million marks, fifty million marks of which is represented by the loss on the resumption of gold currency.

THE SILVER BILL AND RESUMPTION.

The Debate in Congress-Speech of Mr. Davis.

[From the Congressional Record, Nov. 15.]

The bill to repeal the third section of the "Act to provide for the resumption of specie payment" being under consideration in the House of Representatives on Wednesday, the 14th inst., Mr. Davis, of North Carolina, said:

Mr. Speaker, the only difference between my friend from New York and myself is that I should be glad to see enough silver in circulation to pay not only the whole national debt, but the whole private debt of the country, and I am sure our people would be much happier, and I think the national creditors would be better off than they will be if they persist in the folly of resumption which will bankrupt the whole country.

As I was about to say, Mr Speaker, when interrupted, I am obliged to my friend and colleague, (Mr. Yeates,) by whose kindness and courtesy I occupy the floor at this time. I am the more obliged to him because this is one of the most important questions which can engage the attention of Congress, and one which demands our most careful consideration, and because I wish to say some things on this subject which may at least serve to warn the public creditor and the capitalists of the danger to them as well as to the mass of the people of the country in a financial policy which has brought bankruptcy and ruin to thousands, ay, hundreds of thousands of our citizens; a policy which has depreciated immensely every species of property except bonds and national bank stocks; a policy which has paralyzed labor, industry, and enterprise, which are the only sources of national wealth and prosperity; a policy which has sown poverty and distress broadcast all over the land; a policy which has brought want, and, in many instances, pinching hunger to families of thousands and hundreds of thousands of laboring men who seek and cannot find remunerative employment.

Sir, gentlemen on the other side of the House speak of prosperity and say we are within reach of it, and it will come with resumption. It reminds me of one of the fables of the Greek philosopher: One Scholasticas was anxious to teach his ass to live without food, and just about the time, as he said, he had taught him to live without food, he died. [Laughter.] So it is here, at the time when our people are suffering under poverty, crushing poverty and bankruptcy, we are told we are just within the reach of prosperity. [Laughter.]

Sir, has there not ruin, certain ruin, been brought to the country? Is there not distress? The man who has ears to hear, the man who has eyes to see but cannot perceive this, must be blind indeed, must be deaf indeed.

What is the cause of this? Everybody, Mr. Speaker, can tell when a man is sick. Everybody can tell when the country is in distress. It requires no medical skill to do that. It requires no science or knowledge. Everybody can see when the body lies prostrate with fever; its quickened pulse and parched tongue tell it is about to die. But perhaps everybody cannot tell what the remedy is. Everybody can tell when he sees a man reeling in drunkeness and everybody can tell him that if he stops drinking he can get sober. Now if you know what the disease is, if you know what produces it, what is the cause, then it is a very easy matter to apply the remedy. Let us see what is the cause of this disease which has brought so much distress upon the country. It is to found in the financial policy now prevailing, which has enriched the few and impoverished millions.

While it is the duty of the Government to coin money and regulate the value thereof, and while it has been held in these latter days to be in the constitutional power of Congress to make legal-tenders of paper money as well as of coin—I say while that has been held to be legal, it must become more and more the duty of the Government to give to the country a good financial system which will be just to all classes and meet the demands of a great industrial people, such as we are.

But, sir, what has been done? In the first place there is a banking law which gives a monopoly of banking business to the national bondholders. This law, by a tax of 10 per cent. on the circulation of all banks other than national banks, gives them the exclusive privilege of banking, and this tax was imposed solely for this purpose. It was not for revenue for not one cent of revenue is realized.

It is an unjust and odious discrimination preventing all free competition, which is the life of all free and healthful trade, thus giving to one class of men the power to control absolutely the currency of the country.

You may have your gold, but you cannot bank upon it. You may have your land, but you cannot bank upon it. You may have any other species of property other than those national bonds, and you cannot bank upon it and cannot get credit upon it. And yet the gentleman from New York [Mr. Chittenden] who spoke yesterday said he was in favor of free banking, and that would bring relief to the country. Hie free banking is a tax of 10 per cent. on all other banks except national banks, and nobody to bank except those who can get the national bonds. That is what my friend on the other side of the House means by free banking. If he means there should be competition in this as in every other business, and that it should regulate itself by the law of supply and demand, there is no difference between him and myself. Save us from his kind of free banking! We have had it for fifteen years and it has laid the country prostrate and in ruin.

Another evil has been contraction, and contraction in a wonderful degree. I heard on this floor to-day a gentleman with whom I have not the honor of an acquaintance [Mr. Bacon] declare that he was in favor of honest money, and that his State was in favor of honest money. The gentleman from from New York [Mr. Chittenden] yesterday said that half a million of his constituents were ready to come down here and protest in the name of honesty against our action on the silver question. Honest money! Why sir, are not the "greenbacks" honest money? The gentleman held up one of them yesterday. Is not this honest money? If it is not, pray tell me where are the men who put it upon the country? Were they dishonest? Does the gentleman mean to insinuate that this money, put into the hands of the people by an act of Congress, contaminates the holder and that it is a fraud and a sham to use it in paying private or public debts? The gentleman from New York [Mr. Chittenden] has said it was a fraud and a sham.

Who enacted the sham, and who perpetrated the fraud, and upon whom was the fraud perpetrated? The gentleman from New York talks about gentlemen on this side speaking nonsense, and having passion and temper. I think, Mr. Speaker, if the gentlemen on the other side would be less angry it would be better for them. Why, sir, these gentlemen are only mad because with one of their gold dollars they cannot buy twice as much as you can with one greenback dollar. That is the cause of the anger. I hold in my hands one of those greenbacks. It is of the series of 1869. When issued, this promise to pay $10 was worth $7.50. It is worth now $9 30, and yet it is a "dirty rag," "a sham," worth nothing in eyes jaundiced by yellow gold. No sir, my friends are angry because we are about to take it out of their power to make one of their gold dollars worth two of greenbacks; or in other words to give to their gold double the purchasing power which the money of the people has.

Then there is another thing. The gentleman from New York said yesterday that it was a breach of faith—and that is a very serious charge—that it was a breach of faith to pay these debts now in this money. Why, sir, he said it was "repudiation." Again I point the gentleman to this greenback which I hold in my hand. There it is. Does it fix any time when it is to be paid? It does not. But it promises to pay $10. O! but, he says, there was legislation fixing when it should be paid. But how was that legislation brought about? Let the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. Kelley] tell. By a party caucus, he said. And sir, how was the act of demonetizing silver passed? By fraud? Honorable gentlemen on that side of the House have intimated as much. Why, Mr. Speaker, the measure which was passed on the 4th of November had been publicly discussed upon every stump in the land; it had been discussed both before the people and in the press. Everybody had been informed in relation to it and every gentleman knew what he was doing. When the gentleman speaks about the wrong done to the people and of appealing to the people to right this great wrong, I tell him to bring down his half million of men, and I shall not dread them half as much as I would that lobby of the bankers and bondholders who in former times influenced the legislation of Congress. I shall not dread that half million of men so much, because I do not dread the enemy who fights with open hand, for I can meet him in battle; but I do dread the insidious lobby which comes around with bankers' money to influence the legislation of Congress.

The day of Credit Mobilier, "real estate pools," of "Black Fridays"—those days of darkness and disgrace—have passed by, and such things have no influence upon this Congress. We have discharged our duty; we have restored to the people, as far as this House is able to do, that money which has been the currency of merchants since the days of Abraham. It remains to be seen whether the other departments of the government will discharge their duty equally as well to the people.

[Here Mr. Davis quoted from a speech made in the last Congress by Mr. Fort, of Illinois, to show that the demonetization bill was passed without being discussed, without the reading of the bill or the knowledge of anybody excepting those who were in the secret.]

Now, Mr. Speaker, let me remind the House that in 1865, twelve years ago, the circulating medium of the country was virtually $2,100,000,000, for nearly all the public debt was then used as currency. Now it is nominally not more than one-third of that sum, and really not one-fifth. And yet the gentleman says it is all right and all is going on well.

Sir, it was charged upon this floor by a gentleman from Tennessee, [Mr. Bright,] last year, and proved, that a large amount was levied on the stockholders of the national banks to influence legislation here. When the gentleman talks of bringing down his half million people, I beg him to see that they do not come with the bankers' money in their hands.

As I said just now, this contraction has been the ruin of the country. In 1865 that large amount of money was in circulation, and just in proportion as that amount has been contracted has the value of property gone down. But the gentleman from New York asked yesterday, "Are you going to pay an honest debt of one hundred cents with ninety-two cents?"

I say to the gentleman that when he comes to me with a bond I will look at it and see "what is nominated in the bond." No time is fixed for its payment. And as it is payable in either coin or legal tenders I will say to him "I will pay you in coin, but if there be one coin cheaper than another I prefer to pay it in that, it being my legal right." If he demands that I pay him in gold I will say to him "here Shylock, here is your pound of flesh;" "but if you take one drop of blood, by the laws of Venice, confiscation and death is the penalty." That I shall say to the gentlemen who endeavor to exercise terroism over us through the press and his half million men. The gentleman from New York made a remark in a spirit which I can hardly think he meant when he said:

"Why this frantic haste? I am assured by those who served here when the gentlemen who now control the House and the country were on the other side of the Potomac with their guns, that no such hurried proceedings were tolerated."

"What is the meaning of that, sir?"

Mr. Chittenden I meant it as a compliment.

Mr. Davis, of North Carolina. I am glad to hear it. I am glad that he meant it as a campliment I am glad that he did not mean to stir up old strife; that he did not mean, hyena-like, to dig into the grave and bring up the dead body and gloat upon its stench. I am glad that the gentleman meant it as a compliment, and not as intimidation.

Mr. Chittenden. I used the wrong word; allow me to correct it. I meant to say that I used that as a bit of pleasantry.

Mr. Davis, of North Carolina. Well, I am glad the gentleman used it as a bit of pleasantry. Perhaps if he had been over here at Bull Run, he would have seen something more hasty than the passage of this bill. I want to say to this House and to the whole country to the gallant soldiers of the Northern army, as I know I can say for the gallant soldiers of the Southern army, that those men who had guns in their hands are now willing to bury the dead past, not to bring up these things again for the purpose of reviving old hatreds and of influencing legislators in any vote they may have to give.

Mr. Chittenden. Allow me half a minute.

Mr. Davis, of North Carolina. Certainly.

Mr. Chittenden. I wish to say that if there is any gentleman on that side of the House who supposed that I meant in that allusion anything unpleasant, I withdraw it, and express cordially and earnestly my regret that I should have said a word capable of any such interpretation.

Mr. Davis, of North Carolina. I am glad the gentleman has made this explanation, because his language struck me as having been uttered for a purpose.

Mr. Chittenden. It cost me nothing to make this explanation, for it is the exact truth.

Mr. Davis, of North Carolina. I am sure of that, and I will do the gentleman full justice. The gentleman also said that he believed the greenback was the most powerful enemy our country has ever encountered, slavery only excepted. If I had said that ten years ago there was a word called "loyalty" and another called "disloyalty," two words that prevailed all over this country a hundred years ago. Our whig ancestors had no very great respect for that word "loyalty," it is true. And I confess that I have seen some things in later days that has diminished my regard for that word.

A distinguished statesman of the republican party is reported to have said in New York, some weeks ago, in speaking of civil service reform, that when Dr. Johnson uttered that celebrated sentence, "Patriotism is the last refuge of a scoundrel," if he had known of this novelty of civil service reform he would have substituted that for the other. Sir, if Dr. Johnson had been in my country and had seen how the people were plundered in the name of loyalty; had seen what a refuge that word afforded for thieves and scoundrels, he would have forgotten the word "patriotism," he would have forgotten the phrase "civil service reform," and would have said: "O, loyalty thou art the refuge, thou art the shield, thou art the strong protection of thieves and rascals and scoundrels." He never would have said that "patriotism is the last refuge of a scoundrel."

But I must hasten on. There is another thing which the gentleman said. He said, "Can the Government afford even to risk a constructive imputation of dishonesty?" Sir, I think not; I think not. But the man who proposes to pay the Government bond according to the Government bond cannot with any truthfulness be charged with dishonesty. The gentleman says that all the gamblers of the country, all the bankrupts of the country, are found howling for this bill. Sir, the gentleman is mistaken; all the gamblers are not urging the passage of this bill. There is a set of gamblers in Wall street who are striving to defeat this bill; the gentleman does not embrace them. They are the gamblers who make iniquitous Black Fridays; they are the gamblers who make corners in wheat and corn, no matter what suffering it may cause the poor of the country; they are the gamblers who make corners and seek to control the price of cotton and tobacco. Those gamblers are found on the side of the gentleman from New York, [Mr. Chittenden,] and I have yet to hear of the first one of them who is in favor of this bill.

I said I desired to warn these gentlemen. There is a book called Gil Blas, the author of which has immortalized the stupidity and obstinacy of one Dr. Sangrado. Dr. Sangrado had two specifics for all diseases; these were bloodletting and plenteous draughts of warm water. All diseases were to be healed by these two remedies. When his patients died, as they often did, the old doctor said, "You have not followed my prescription in good faith; you do not let enough blood; you do not take enough of the aqueous draughts." The old doctor went on in his practice, but his pupil, Gil Blas, having received a sound pummeling, forsook it. The old doctor, however, went on in his practice and received gold as these bondholders have been receiving. After a while, however, he had killed off all his patients, and then the old gentleman had to betake himself to cold water and bread.

Now these gentlemen, after they have destroyed the foundations of labor, have taken all the means of the country into their control. When they find that by their policy they have destroyed all the sources of their wealth, then they will realize the fate of old Dr. Sangrado, and be glad to get bread and water.

I speak now of the effect of contraction. Mr. William H. Crawford, Secretary of War in 1812, used this language:

"All intelligent writers on currency agree that when it is decreasing in amount poverty and misery must prevail."

Was there ever a greater truth uttered? Does it not illustrate what is now befalling this country? Does not poverty prevail everywhere? Is not misery stalking all over this land?

Mr. Speaker, I think that our present distressed financial condition is due in the first place to exclusive privileges secured to the national banks, in the second place to contraction, and in the last place to the demonetization of silver. Gentlemen say that all these looked to the early resumption of specie payment. No, not specie payment, but payment in gold. These are the things that have brought about the present distress. Knowing what caused the distress, let us ask how the remedy shall be applied. We applied on the 4th of this month, so far as this House is concerned, one powerful medicine that will go a long ways to relieve the country; I mean the bill for the remonetization of silver. Just here I desire to state it as my opinion—and I believe that every man who reflects honestly upon this question will agree with me—that, if gold had been demonetized instead of silver, silver would be worth more to-day relatively in the market than gold is. If the Government had said that silver should be the currency in which alone the bonds should be paid, that silver should be the money received for duties on importations, I believe it is as demonstrably clear as anything not a question of mathematics that the same gentlemen who are now howling for gold would be crying, "Give us silver dollars!" For there is not silver enough in the country to pay the imports for one year, there is not enough of it to pay interest on our national bonds. Silver would to-day be worth more than gold, because in point of value it is the scarcer of the two metals.

But my good friend from New York, [Mr. Townsend,] who spoke last, talked about the money for the poor man and the money for the rich man. There are some things about which men are very blind:

> When self the wavering balance holds
> 'Tis rarely right adjusted.

It is curious that gentlemen should say that we want to give the poor man trash as money. What do we want to give the poor man? We are seeking to give him what you yourselves declared money, and what was money when the bonds were issued. But suppose the so-called policy of resumption, goes on, what does the poor man get? Do you say that it is dishonest to give the bondholder ninety-two cents in silver as a dollar when his bond calls for one hundred cents to the dollar? But the poor man when his labor earns $5 or less is obliged to take silver, and he cannot help himself!

Now, let us see how that will work. Here is a man employed by the gentleman from New York, who pays him every day $1. At the end of ten weeks he has paid him $60 in silver. That very man goes to pay his rent, and though the gentleman from New York has paid him $60 in silver, yet when he comes to collect his rents he says "O, that is the poor man's money; that is a degraded currency; I cannot take that in payment; give me gold." So the poor fellow must take $66 in silver to get $60 in gold in order to pay his rent. Yet these men talk about our treating this question like demagogues; they talk about our giving the poor man one kind of money and the rich man another! Why, sir, it does seem to me that the cheeks of a brazen statue would blush at such talk. They say that silver is trash; that honest men would not handle it; yet by the law which they passed, and which they insist must remain on the statue-book, they would require every man who had a debt due him of $5 or less to receive in payment this worthless, degraded money; but when larger sums are to be paid, the larger creditors must have gold!

Let us look at the resumption act in another aspect. It provides for redeeming greenbacks at the subtreasury in New York, in sums of $50 and upward; so that the poor man who has less than $50 is obliged to sell his bills to the sharper, the money broker, the Shylock, before he can get gold for them. Yet they say this bill will ruin the poor man! Now, Mr. Speaker, I would much rather let the poor man take care of himself than have the bankers take care of him.

When gentlemen say that the bill for the remonetization of silver was not passed in the interest of the country, I call their attention to the fact that it was discussed all over the land, and the vote here for its passage was nearly five to one; yet even that vote does not fully represent the preponderance of popular sentiment in favor of this measure. You will find that outside of New York and other limited communities, everybody is in favor of it.

There is one thing further, Mr. Speaker, which I wish I wish to add: I hold in my hand a schedule of the value of gold, month by month, from 1862 down to the present time, and also the gold value of the currency from that time down to this. There was not one of these bonds issued when greenbacks were not worth a great deal less than now. Here is the value given year by year. In 1862 it was 88; in 1863 it was 68.

There is not one of these men who loaned to the Government money when it was worth within 30 per cent. of what greenbacks are now worth. Yet they talk about being paid in a degraded and disgraced currency! There is not one who gets silver who will not get twenty cents on the dollar more than he loaned, and yet they talk about a degraded currency! There is not one who if he gets ninety cents in the dollar but will get more than he loaned. Where, then, comes in the dishonesty? Where comes in the inequity—I should have said where comes in the iniquity? Where comes in the injustice? Men have by shrewd policy and the power of the lobby put this thing on the country, and if the country rises up and says, "This shall go on no longer," they come and talk about hasty legislation.

The gentleman from New York would make it a violation of contract if we pass a bill now, saying these debts should be paid in greenbacks, which were legal tender at the time the debts were contracted. He says it is also a violation of contract if we remonetize silver. That is a strange and perverted idea of the law of contracts. Suppose the last Congress in the manner described by the gentleman from Pennsylvania. [Mr. Kelley,] or in the manner described by the gentleman from Illinois, [Mr. Fort,] passed a law declaring bonds should be paid in diamonds. Would the gentleman say if we came here to repeal that iniquitious law, "You are breaking a contract because your predecessors said these bonds should be paid in diamonds." It is a nudum pactum; it is a contract not binding. Such contract, sir, would not be binding upon this Congress, nor upon the country. Nothing, in fact, can bind us; nothing can be claimed as binding upon the Congress of the United States and the people of the United States except the money of the country at the time the loan was contracted.

Now, Mr. Speaker, as I said at the outset, this is a question of great moment to the country. There is distress everywhere, and the country looks to us for relief. Members of this House were elected, most of them, in full view of the discussions had on this very question. Many come up here instructed as strongly as men can be by their constituents, to put a stop to the iniquities of a financial system which has brought ruin to this country. I say here to gentlemen who are trying to frighten us from our propriety that in our opinion the voice of the people comes like a mighty whirlwind, demanding we shall pass the pending financial measures. The voice of the people demands some justice shall be done to the laboring-men of the country and to men who have property other than national bonds. The public voice demands the outrages inflicted shall cease.

The public voice demands that there shall no longer be one money for the bondholder and another for the laboring-man. The country demands that this discrimination shall cease. The country demands that the people shall not be taxed to death to pay a class of creditors who are not themselves taxed at all and in coin not named in the original contract. The country demands these men shall be dealt fairly with and no more; and that the debtor shall not be robbed for the creditor. It demands we shall cease to take out of the pockets of the debtor from thirty to forty cents on the dollar to pay the creditor in gold when the creditors themselves are not taxed.

One thing is sure and cannot be gain said. Gentlemen on the other side talk about capital running away. All I have to say is, it is better let it run away than to remain here as a mighty Moloch, crushing the labor of the country. It is said that injustice is done to capital. One thing is quite certain, that while every other species of property has depreciated the bonds held by the bondholders have advanced in value.

VEGETINE,

An Excellent Medicine.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Feb. 28, 1877.

This is to certify that I have used VEGETINE, manufactured by H. R. Stevens, Boston, Mass., for Rheumatism and General Prostration of the Nervous System, with good success. I recommend VEGETINE as an excellent medicine for such complaints.

Yours very truly,

Our Minister's Wife.

MR. H. R. STEVENS.

Dear Sir,—Three years ago I was suffering terribly with Inflamatory Rheumatism. Our minister's wife advised me to take VEGETINE. After taking one bottle, I was entirely relieved. This year, feeling a return of the disease, I again commenced taking it, and am being benefitted greatly. It greatly improves my digestion. Respectfully,
MRS. A. BALLARD.

Safe and Sure.

MR. H. R. STEVENS.

In 1872 your VEGETINE was recommended to me; and, yielding to the persuasions of a friend, I consented to try it. At the time I was suffering from general debility and nervous prostration, superinduced by overwork and irregular habits. Its wonderful strengthening and curative properties seemed to affect my debilitated system from the first dose; and under its persistent use I rapidly recovered, gaining more than usual health and good feeling. Since then I have not hesitated to give VEGETINE my most unqualified indorsement as being a safe, sure and powerful agent in promoting health and restoring the wasted system to new life and energy. VEGETINE is the only medicine I use, and as long as I live I never expect to find a better.

Yours truly, W. H. CLARK,
120 Monterey Street, Alleghany, Penn.

VEGETINE.

The following letter from Rev. G. W. Mansfield, formerly pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Hyde Park, and at present settled in Lowell, must convince every one who reads his letter of the wonderful curative qualities of VEGETINE as a thorough cleanser and purifier of the blood.

HYDE PARK, Mass., Feb. 15, 1876.

MR. H. R. STEVENS.

Dear Sir: About ten years ago my health failed through the depleting effects of dyspepsia; nearly a year later I was attacked by typhoid fever in its worst form. It settled in my back, and took the form of a large, deep-seated abscess, which was fifteen months in gathering. I had two surgical operations by the best skill in the State, but received no permanent cure. I suffered great pain at times, and was constantly weakened by a profuse discharge, I also lost small pieces of bone at different times.

Matters ran on thus about seven years, till May 1874, when a friend recommended me to go to your office, and talk with you of the virtue of Vegetine. I did so, and by your kindness passed through your manufactory, noting the ingredients, &c, by which your remedy is produced.

By what I saw and heard I gained some confidence in Vegetine.

I commenced taking it soon after, but felt worse from its effects; still I persevered, and soon felt it was benefiting me in other respects. Yet I did not see the results I desired till I had taken it faithfully for a little more than a year, when the difficulty in the back was cured; and for nine months I have enjoyed the best of health.

I have in that time gained twenty five pounds of flesh, being heavier than ever before in my life, and I was never more able to perform labor than now.

During the past few weeks I had a scrofulous swelling as large as my fist gather on another part of my body.

I took Vegetine faithfully, and it removed it level with the surface in a month. I think I should have been cured of my main trouble sooner if I had taken larger doses, after having become accustomed to its effects

Let your patrons troubled with scrofula or kidney disease understand that it takes time to cure chronic diseases; and if they will patiently take Vegetine, it will, in my judgment, cure them.

With great obligations I am
Yours very truly,
G. W. MANSFIELD,
Pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Charlotte Democrat: On last Sunday evening Mr. John F. Klutts, of Cabarrus county, aged about 20 years, was found dead in the road leading from his mother's house to Mr. John B. Wallace's residence. He had been visiting his mother, Mrs. John Bradford, and had started to return to Mr. Wallace's house, where he was living, when it is supposed he was attacked with apoplexy or epilepsy, and fell dead in the road.

We were shown this week, says the Lincoln Progress, by Mr. Wm. Garrison, three nuggets of gold taken from a branch deposit on his plantation, the largest of which weighed 12½ penny weights. We understand our townsman, Mr. B. S. Johnson, once found a nugget in the same branch which weighed three pounds and a half. There is a fine vein under this deposit running northeast along a hill-side, which if properly worked, would pay handsomely.

Wilmington Star: The engine and three cars of a south bound freight train on the Wilmington, Columbia & Augusta Railroad were thrown from the track yesterday morning, about 10 o'clock, near Aiken's Turnout, between Mayesville and Lynchburg, S. C., by which the fireman, a colored man by the name of Ivery Wood, was instantly killed. The engineer, Mr. Calvo, was also considerably bruised, though not seriously hurt. The accident was caused by some obstructions being placed on the track. The track was expected to be clear last night.

Reidsville Times: Sandy Palmer, a colored man near Milton, N. C., fell from his ox cart loaded with wood, and the wood fell on him and the front wheel ran on his breast. The ox stopped still and stood there all night. The old man threw up his hands and rubbed all the skin from the inside trying to push the wheel off. His little dog stood by his side and barked all night. His child heard the dog barking in the woods, and found her father, next morning, his arms stiff and hands up, as he had grabbed the cart wheel. He was buried in that position. His arms were so stiff they could not be bent.

Thursday evening says the Register, Coroner Beal was called upon to hold an inquest over the remains of Jonathan Anthony, who died very suddenly on Wednesday night at Mr. C. W. Shull's corn shucking. Mr. Anthony was in his usual health when he left home, and going to Mr. Shull's, he went to work at the corn pile as did the other men. As is usual on such occasions, "the brandy was passed around" several times, and young Anthony took an occasional drink as it passed. Feeling the effects of the brandy he layed down in the shucks for a nap, and was left there by the crowd after the corn had been shucked. In about two hours afterward, in attempting to arouse him, he was found to be dead, and was then carried to the house where he lay until the arrival of the coroner.

Roanoke News: According to previous notice, a meeting was held at Battleboro on Thursday last to devise some means of escape from the tyranny of the Wilmington and Weldon Railroad. Capt. W. H. Powell was called to the chair and B. F. Pitt, Esq., requested to act as secretary. The meeting was addressed by Hon. T. P. Braswell, Major Dozier and others. No final action was taken on the subject matter of the meeting. Another will be held soon, when a definite plan of action will be settled on. We understand that the people of this section have every promise of outside assistance and support in their fight against the giant monopoly which is crushing them to the earth. It is estimated that a railroad from Battleboro to Scotland Neck can be laid for $120,000, and we are informed that $80,000 of this amount has been pledged from outside parties.

THE SILVER BILL AND RESUMPTION.

Elsewhere we present the speech of Hon. Joseph J. Davis, the excellent representative of this Congressional District on the bill to repeal the third section of the resumption act. The speech is an able one, logical, clear, full of instruction and throughly expressive of Southern sentiment on the question. We regret that we were unable to give the speech to our readers on Saturday of last week. We were prevented from doing so by the failure of the Congressional Record of November 15, containing the debate, reaching us in time. Mr. Davis' speeches are always of value, as they are never lacking in sound reasoning and careful statements of fact.

Mr. Davis was followed by Mr. Steele, who delivered his first speech upon the floor of the House. He concurred fully in the views of his distinguished colleague, and entertained the House with some terse, vigorous, pungent remarks. It was perfectly clear to his mind that the proposed sudden contraction of the currency "must necessarily produce damage and ruin to the country." He said he never will agree to the financial system which forces a resumption of specie payments for the benefit of only one class of the people of this country. His views were entirely consonant with those of Mr. Davis.

The speech of Mr. Felton, of Georgia, elicited great applause from our side of the House. Mr. Stephens said it was the greatest speech delivered on the floor of the House since the war. Mr. Felton favored the repeal of the resumption act. He inveighed against class legislation, and opposed the strikes of the laboring men. Labor had no right to make war upon capital, but it was equally wrong for capital to conspire against labor. The act demonetizing the silver dollar was as unjust and wicked as the famous strikes which had recently startled and alarmed the country. That act demonetizing silver was the most deliberate, inexcusable attack upon labor ever known in legislative history; but that did not quite make New York and New England the owners of the cotton fields of the South, and therefore the black scheme of contraction had been consummated, just as the wild delirium of war was subsiding into reason. All encouragement was withdrawn and financial ruin ensued. During the war, the bankers of New York and these antiquated Shylocks, had spent every dollar not expended in paying for substitutes in buying United States bonds, and they became clamorous for contraction. They cared not for the resumption of specie payments. That was but a pretense they had jumped at, and agitation had sent down the price of labor to starvation wages.

Mr. Felton went on to say that the gentleman from New York (Mr. Chittenden) had said yesterday from his perch (the Clerk's desk) that gamblers and loafers and bankrupts demanded the repeal of the resumption act. The gentleman from New York must have kept a ledger on one side of which the poor man was put, and the man who owned three or four hundred thousand dollars Government securities on the other side, the side which was grinding down the laboring man. The report of the debate from which we gather these particulars continues as follows:

As soon as Mr. Chittenden heard himself alluded to in Mr. Felton's remarks, he crossed over to the Democratic side of the House in order to hear more distinctly what was said about him. He made several attempts to interpose a remark, but was not permitted to do so, as he himself gave notice yesterday that he would not allow any interruptions. Mr. Felton went on with his denunciation of capitalists. Addressing himself directly to Mr. Chittenden, who was standing in one of the aisles on the Democratic side, the butt of jests and laughter on that side, he said: "And yet you undertake to comfort the country by telling it all these things will right themselves. Yes, I know that these things will right themselves, when they have touched the bottomless pit of despair and poverty. Look yonder at that storm-driven ocean. Hurricane and darkness are upon the deep, signal guns are firing every minute, ships are going down by the hundred, thousands of precious lives are being engulfed, and in the midst of all the ruins, there (pointing over to Mr. Chittenden) stands the wrecker [outbursts of laughter and applause on the Democratic side] waiting for the spoils, and assuring those in peril of destruction that all these things will right themselves. [Continuation of applause on the Democratic side.]

Mr. Chittenden (Rep. N. Y.), still standing on that side of the Chamber, asked a minute to reply to Mr. Felton.

Mr. Douglas (Dem., Va.)—No, not have a minute to the wrecker. [Laughter and noisy demonstrations.]

Mr. Tucker (Dem., Va.) proposed jocularly to have a recess of a few minutes until some restoratives be applied to the corpse of New York (meaning Mr. Chittenden.)

Mr. Hardenbergh, who was entitled to the floor, yielded five minutes of his time to Mr. Chittenden.

This interesting discussion shows that the issue has at length been clearly and sharply drawn between the people and the bondholders. The gold bugs are arrayed against the silver bill. Free coinage of silver is a feature which makes them clutch their capacious pockets and yell out that "the integrity of the country must be protected." They care nothing for the protection of the people against the bondholders. The sum of all their arguments is that they want their unhallowed combination against the producing classes protected. We hope they may be disappointed. The North Carolina delegation has taken a manly stand against them, in behalf of the people, and we trust that their noble efforts will be crowned with success.

THOMAS N. HILL, ESQ.

It seems to be not unlikely that the nominees for the Supreme Court Bench will be taken one from the West, one from the East, and the other from the central portion of the State. Whatever may be said of the abstract impropriety of taking geographical location into consideration as among the qualifications of a Judge of the Supreme Bench, the practical workings of nominating conventions generally point to the gratification of all sections. For this reason our candidates for Governor and Lieutenant Governor are generally taken from opposite portions of the State, and from time immemorial there has been an almost unbroken custom of sending to the U. S. Senate one Senator from the East, the other from the West. From what we can gather of the sentiment of those who are likely to compose the nominating convention next summer, a similar policy is likely to be followed in the nomination of the three judges who shall sit upon our Supreme Bench when the present incumbents shall step down and out.

Among the gentlemen whose names are pressed for the nomination from the east is that of Thomas N. Hill, Esq., of Halifax. A good lawyer and an accomplished gentleman, he is the choice of a large circle of friends. We are sure that if nominated there is no one who will more adorn the bench by purity of morals, impartiality of judgment and depth of learning.

Our friend and namesake, the Roanoke News, has, in behalf of the Roanoke section, been persistently urging the claims of Mr. Hill. The vote in the convention will not fail to demonstrate that the utterances of our neighbor have fairly expressed the sentiments of that noble region of country.

The following is the full text of the article from the Weldon News above alluded to:

We are not of those who hold that it is outside the province of journalism to indicate a choice of candidates before the nomination. On the contrary our opinion has always been that it was the duty of the press to assist in making the fittest selection of candidates, even more than to urge their election after nomination.

For these reasons we have no hesitation in announcing that we shall urge for a place on the Democratic ticket for the Supreme Bench the name of Thos. N. Hill, Esqr., of this county. Of Mr. Hill's fitness for this high position there can be no question. Every year that he has been at the bar has seen him make giant strides in his profession, until now the estimate which the people put on his talents is evidenced by his appearance in almost every important suit at the courts in which he practices. While the reputation for high talents and strict impartiality borne by him among his brethren of the bar is shown by his being chosen as referee in the most important and complicated cases whenever he does not appear as counsel.

Such a man is Thomas N. Hill, and being such we present him to the nominating Convention of the Democratic party.

DR. MITCHELL'S BODY.

We copy the following communication which we find in the last number of the Charlotte Democrat, as containing information and making suggestions that will interest many of our readers:

TRINITY COLLEGE,
HARTFORD, CONN., Nov. 8, 1877.

Editor Charlotte Democrat:

A friend has forwarded me the issue of your paper for November 2d, 1877, containing Judge Schenck's interesting account of "Big Tom Wilson's" search and discovery of the body of Dr. Mitchell. It was my good fortune to visit Mitchell's Peak in the summer of 1876, and to meet on the very summit the brave old man whose narrative now appears in print. Tom Wilson related to me the same story so graphically written by your correspondent, who only fails in one particular to do him justice. He fails to depict the glowing countenance, the quaint language of the old mountaineer, and the demonstrative gestures with which his narrative was undoubtedly accompanied.

My object in writing to you, however, is to call your attention to the fact that Dr. Mitchell's grave is not marked by any monument nor inscription; a rude wall of rough unhewn stones has been raised around the grave to keep the passer-by from treading on the hallowed spot; and this alone distinguishes the resting place of the man whom the citizens of North Carolina bear in reverent and affectionate remembrance.

I have previously called attention to this neglect of duty, in the columns of the Asheville Citizen, and hope you will lend me your columns for another appeal to the friends of Dr. Mitchell, and the people of the State.

Measures should be taken to erect a simple, inexpensive monument, containing a suitable inscription. Why should there be any great delay? Surely Dr. Mitchell has admirers and friends enough in the State to raise the three or four hundred dollars needed to carry out some simple device. Perhaps the University ought to lead the way, to be followed by Professor Mitchell's pupils wherever scattered.

If you will suggest any practical plan for arousing the North Carolinians to their privilege and duty in this matter you will have no occasion to regret your action. Respectfully yours,

H. CARROLTON BOLTON.

THE returns of the election for members of the Legislature of Virginia, says the Philadelphia Times, come in so slowly that the reports as to its complexion on the debt question are conflicting. The most trust worthy estimates, however, give a fair working majority to the debt-paying party as opposed to the combined repudators, forcible adjusters and other factions. The new State officers are outspoken in favor of meeting the obligations of the State, and General Walker, the Lieutenant Governor-elect, who denounced forcible readjustment highway robbery, not only had no opposition, but did not fall behind his ticket. Those Republican organs that are taunting Virginia with having any anti-debt party at all seem to be in blissful ignorance of the fact that nine-tenths of the vote of this party was cast by the disbanded Republicans, who went that way because no other door to opposition was open. The probability is that but for the negro vote there would not have been a single outspoken repudiationist elected.

THE action of the recent colored Convention in this city, in regard to the efforts being made by the present State administration and the State press to elevate and improve the condition of the negro race, excited considerable criticism. The following is a copy of the original resolution which was tabled:

Resolved, That we recognize and appreciate the great and lasting benefits which are being realized from the influence exerted by the State press and the action of the State Legislature and the Executive, in the direction of providing more ample and efficient means for the education of the masses; that we are grateful for the generous and impartial policy observed toward the colored people in the promotion of this important interest.

THE advantages of having an efficient State militia were made apparent in New York during the recent strike. That State has just settled with its troops. The total cost for pay, arms, ammunition, transportation, etc., was $250,000; that is, New York lost $10,000,000 less than the neighboring State of Pennsylvania.

The Bone and Sinew

Of our country have often—especially about election time—been made the subject of laudation; but when those useful parts of the human structure become too visible in consequence of leanness, they can scarcely be called graceful. The eye delights not to dwell upon angles and ridges in either man or woman. Moreover, extreme emaciation is a sign of imperfect digestion and consequent poverty of the blood. Both these evils are remedied by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which render digestion and assimilation certainties, in consequence of which the blood acquires richness and the body substance. Thus are the hollow places filled up and the angles rounded off. Through the instrumentality of this peerless aid to digestion and promoter of physical well-being, the body rapidly gains in vigor, color returns to the hollow cheek, the appetite improves, nervous symptons vanish, and a healthful impetus is given to every vital function.

An Open Letter to the Public.

NEW YORK, October 1, 1877.

I have devoted twenty years of patient study to the Liver and its relations to the human body, in search of a remedy which would restore it, when diseased, to its normal condition. The result of that labor has been the production of

TUTT'S LIVER PILLS.

Their popularity has become so extended and the demand so great as to induce unscrupulous parties to counterfeit them, thereby ROBBING ME of the reward, and the afflicted of their virtues.

To Caution the Public.

and protect them from vile impositions, have adopted a new label, which bears my trade-mark and notice of its entry in the Office of the Librarian of Congress, also my signature, thus;

Dr. Tutt M. D.

☞TO COUNTERFEIT THIS IS FORGERY.☜

Before purchasing, examine the label closely.

THE GENUINE TUTT'S PILLS

exert a peculiar influence on the system. Their action is prompt, and their good effects are felt in a few hours. A quarter of a century of the study of the Liver has demonstrated that it exerts a greater influence over the system than any other organ of the body, and when diseased the entire organism is deranged. It is specially for the healing of this vital organ that I have spent so many years of toil, and having found the remedy, which has proved the greatest boon ever furnished the afflicted. Shall they be deprived of its benefiss, and a vile imitation imposed upon them?

Let the honest people of America see to it that they are not defrauded. Scrutinize the label closely, see that it bears all the marks above mentioned, and buy the medicine only from respectable dealers. It can be found everywhere. Very respectfully,

W. H. TUTT.

Twilight.

AFTER THE FRENCH OF VICTOR HUGO.

Child, go and pray—for see! the night is here!
Through cloudy rifts the golden lights appear;
The hi-li' fain outline trembles in the mist;
Scarcely is heard a distant chariot—hist!
The world's at rest; the tree beside the way
Gives to the evening wind the dust of day.

Twilight unlocks the hiding-place of stars;
They gleam and glow behind night's shadowy bars
The fringe of carmine narrows in the west,
The moonlit water lies in shining rest;
Furrow and foot-path melt and disappear;
The anxious traveler doubts the far and near.

It is the hour when angels stoop to earth
To bless our babes amid our careless mirth.
The little ones with eyes upraised in prayer
With tiny folded hands and little feet bare,
Ask at this twilight hour a blessing dear,
Of Him who loves his little ones to hear.

Then, while they sleep, a cloud of golden dreams,
Born in the calm of day's declining beams,
Waiting in shadow till the hour of night;
Fly to each couch and scatter visions bright:
As joyous bees seek honey-laden flowers,
Dreams hover near in slumber's peaceful hours.

O cradled sleep! O prayers of childhood blest!
O baby-voice, speaking a loving breast!
The happy prayer the darkness maketh light,
Turneth to song the solemn sounds of night.
As 'neath his wing the birdie hides his head,
Thou shelterest by thy prayer thy cradle-bed.

—Appleton's Journal for December.

NEWS NOTES.

The national fruit crop is valued at nearly $140,000,000.

Reports from the cotton States indicate a reduction of about four per cent on the aggregate of a year ago.

The constitution amendment providing for biennial sessions and abolishing the office of Lieutenant Governor in Mississippi, have both been endorsed by the vote of the people.

The Newark Journal hits the nail upon the head when it says what the Republican senators care most about is not Republican principles, but the fulfillment of the motto, "None but Republicans in office."

Baltimore Sun: A party of Chicagoans, six in number, have gone to Mount Airy, N. C., for the benefit of their health. They are victims of consumption, and are accompanied by their physician, under whose advice they are trying the dry, bracing air of the Piedmont region of the South.

A solemn warning for Messrs. Conkling and Blaine:

There once was two cats in Kilkenny,
And aich thought there was one cat too menny:
So they scratched and they fit,
And they tore an' they bit,
Till, barring their nails,
And the tip of their tails,
Instead of two cats there wa'n't anny.

The St. Louis Republican is of opinion that Dr. Loring, who accompanied the President on his visit to Richmond, effectually refutes "the assertion that in placating the Southern whites the President has subjected the Southern blacks to them—that he has caused the lion and the lamb to lie down in peace together by putting the lamb inside the lion."

One of the most remarkable little old men in this country is General James Shields, now Adjutant General of Missouri. He has represented two States in the United States Senate, and was a member of that body when Daniel Webster, Henry Clay, John C. Calhoun and Tom Benton were there. He is lecturing on those characters now.

While Senator Maxey, of Texas, was speaking in the Senate, on Wednesday, Senator Davis, of Illinois, who wants to hear everything that is said and see everything that is done, left his own seat to get nearer the Texan. Forgetting himself, he took the risk of sitting down in one of the ordinary Senate chairs. The result was that the cane-seating, as well as the legs, of the chair gave way, and the next moment four hundred pounds of solid Senatorial were gently dumped on the floor.

An Interesting Statement.

J. Kiser, tax list taker for Cherryville township, Gaston county, furnishes the Charlotte Democrat the following interesting statistics for that township, which is worthy the serious consideration of farmers and legislators through out the State as being sort of index to the condition of other townships and counties—indeed of the whole State. Mr. Kiser says, "having been appointed Tax-List taker of Cherryville township, Gaston county, I will state to such as may wish to know something in regard to the condition of our township, &c., that there were on the 1st of June last, 255 Horses, 324 Mules, 1,529 Cattle, 2,468 Hogs, 1,789 Sheep, 32 Goats, 502 Dogs and 306,970 pannels of common rail fence.

There were 298 Sheep killed by dogs during the year preceding the first of April last.

I hope our Legislature will see the great importance of passing a law for the protection of sheep husbandry. Five hundred dogs in Cherryville township, at a cost of $1 per month to feed each dog, would cost our township $6,000 per annum; besides the damage done in killing sheep at $1.50 per head is $447 more, thus making a total of $6,447 of a dead cost by dogs to our township.

Now will some lover of dogs tell me where there is any great benefit derived from the dogs. I can tell them that there are many poor children who suffer for want of woolen clothing and I am afraid, sometimes for bread and meat, on account of the dogs being too p[illegible]. At a future time I will give you my views as to how the dogs ought to be dealt with and what kind of a law should be passed to protect the sheep."

A Fatal Serenade.

[Baltimore Sun.]

On Thursday last Jos. B. Mann, of Loudon county, Va., was married in Frederick City, Md., and returned that evening with his bride to his mother's residence, near Lovettsville. On Friday evening a club of young men in the neighborhood, composing what is called the "Rattle Band," proceeded to serenade the couple by the use of tin horns, bells, and such other instruments as are best calculated to make night hideous. Mr. John Brislau, one of the number, was elected captain of the crowd. A brother of the groom being made aware of the contemplated serenade protested against it, telling them that his brother had asked him to advise them not to come, as trouble might grow out of it if they did. They paid no attention to the warning, but going to Mann's house had scarcely made one circuit of the premises before he fired upon them several times.—One of the shots took effect in Brislau's neck, inflicting a wound from which he died on Saturday morning. Mann fled, but returned on Sunday and surrender himself. He has been committed to the jail of Loudoun county for the action of the grand jury. Brislau leaves a wife and three children.

THIS Premium at Roanoke & Tar River Agricultural Society, 1875. The Gold Medal, over all other Competitors, at the North Carolina State Fair, in 1876.

It is the most perfect and economical in use. The Boiler is of new design, being vertical, yet all the heating surface is entirely covered with water, thus preventing the fire from destroying the tubes as is the case, in a few years, in all upright tubular boilers in which the fire passes through the tubes above the water line, soon destroying the exposed end of the tubes causing them to leak.

Trial and Discharge of Willie Stone.

This was a case before the Mayor against Willie Stone, accused of firing the store of Messrs. Rand & Wyatt week before last. He was up before the Mayor one day last week and discharged for want of evidence. Subsequently a detective from Richmond was sent for to work up the case, and, as we understand it, Willie was again arrested at his suggestion. He was bailed from Saturday until yesterday, when, at 12 o'clock the case came up for hearing. Col. Thomas C. Fuller appearing for the defendant.

The first evidence taken was that of Eva Utley, a child six years old, who was not sworn; she stated that she saw Willie go up the steps to the upper room of the store awhile before the fire broke out; that he had a dog with him and that there was no one else about that she saw.

Other witnesses who had been summoned were not present. Counsel for the defense asked that the warrant be discharged because the prosecution had had ample time to have its witnesses present and had failed to show any evidence sufficient on which to bind the accused. After some discussion it was agreed to postpone further proceedings until 4 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of procuring the attendance of other witnesses.

At 4 o'clock the case was resumed. A number of witnesses were called for the prosecution, whose testimony we condense as follows:

Wm. Yearby, Jr., saw Willie sitting in a buggy in the street in front of his father's about half an hour before the fire. He went on to the back lot and fed his horse and when he came back to the house Willie went into the house with him: don't know whether Willie was in the buggy all the time he was feeding his horse, but he came from that direction when he returned to the house. After they went into the house witness commenced playing the piano and Willie sat by listening. While this was going on, Willie's little sister, three or four years old, who was in the room looking out at the window towards the shop or store, said "the shop is burning." Willie answered, "no it ain't, is it?" She immediately repeated the words, and the same answer was given, but neither witness nor Willie went to see, when the child exclaimed, "it is burning, I see the blaze." Then both jumped up and went out at the door, and seeing the shop was actually afire, commenced crying "fire!" After the fire was all over, witness said, in presence of Willie, alluding to what the child had said about the shop burning, that he thought she saw the smoke from the railroad shops, and Willie said he had thought so too.

Harriet Utley, a colored woman, had seen Willie a while before the fire was discovered—may-be a quarter of an hour—sitting on the steps of the building playing with a dog. After a while she saw him near the fence on the side of the street next to Mr. Yearby's, where she was, but didn't notice what direction he came from. Had often seen him and other boys playing about the shop—the lot was open around the house.

Miss Betty Yearby lives on the same side of the street, and in the next house to the one burned. Saw Willie playing in the back yard some time before the fire—saw him afterward sitting in the buggy in the street—did not see him go into the shop—had never said she saw him, but had said she had heard some of the children say he had gone in. The yard around the shop is a common play ground for the children in the neighborhood.

Wm. Yearby, Sr., had heard that Willie was suspicioned of setting the shop on fire, and called at his father's next morning early and told him about it, not to induce his father to send him off, but to prepare the family beforehand in case he should be arrested.

A number of witnesses were then examined for the defence, whose testimony we give in brief.

Mr. J. F. A. Lamond had once occupied the house; he described the locality and explained the relative position of the house to other houses around; gave it as his opinion that one standing in the yard where little Eva Utley was said to be standing, could not possibly see any one going up to the room over the shop, beyond the first two or three steps. The steps ran up in rear; the stove was in the room below and the pipe went out through the wall of the room; don't know whether anything was kept in the room above or not. There were two fences between Mrs. Utley's yard, where Eva was said to be standing, and the steps of the shop.

W. H. I. Stone, father of the accused, corroborated Mr. Yearby's statement in regard to the suspicion about his son. Several had tried to persuade him to run his son off—Mr. Lee, chief of police had advised him to do so. He had refused because he believed his son innocent.

Wm. Yearby, Mr. Jackson at Wynne's stable, James Mullin, John Wier and others testified as to the boy's general good character, except that he was a noted fighter among the boys, except Mr. Jackson who knew nothing about him—had never seen him before this affair.

Mr. Mullins had seen dozens of boys playing about the shop—on the steps, on an apple tree in the yard and even on top of the house.

Mr. Weir stated the danger of stoves fixed as the one was in the shop; had recently seen a house catch fire from one like it, but which was extinguished before it got headway. Thought the fire might have originated from the stove. Several testified as to the stove having had fire in it during the day; and that the house was closed and the occupants out at the time the fire broke out, but the door to the upper room stood ajar.

Col. Fuller summed up the evidence, showing there was nothing in it to warrant the holding of the prisoner. His appeal was earnest and affecting. He commended the course of the Mayor in using every effort in his power to ferret out the cause of the frequent conflagrations that have become so alarming; but he claimed that the innocent should not suffer to appease a popular clamor or an unfounded prejudice, and as the evidence elicited had not shown even a probability of guilt on the part of the accused, he therefore asked the discharge of his client.

The Mayor stated that he was desirous of tracing out the cause of the fires that have occurred recently, but had no desire to cause trouble or inconvenience to the innocent, and as sufficient proof had not been obtained against the accused he should discharge him, especially as the grand jury could take cognizance of the case should further proof arise.
